

Turn back the clock! Why not go to...?

John Frost Bridge (Historic monument)

Where?

*10 min. walk
and 5 min. cycling
from the Arnhem centre*

During the World War II (1944), the Allies (military coalition against the Nazi Germany's coalition) started military operation, called "Operation Market Garden".

John Frost bridge was the goal of this operation...

The “Cubes” represent the fighters in the war

The bridge should have been captured by the British 1st Airborne Division.

However, there was a sudden German opposition...

...and merely 740 fighters from the Airborne Division managed to reach the bridge, led by Lt-Colonel John Frost.

The German military got over the Frost’s group.

Although the bridge remained intact,

it was later destroyed by the US Air Force to stop Germans from utilising it.

Arnhem was liberated in April 1945, and other 2 temporary bridges were set up, until John Frost Bridge was finally rebuilt again with precisely the same structure.

It was named after John Frost in 1977.

The history of the bridge was featured in the movie “A Bridge Too Far”.

1995 the World Liberty Concert was organised at the bridge - commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Europe Liberation.
